

About us

Our mission and aims

We enable learning about the Holocaust through personal stories of survivors, presented by their children and grandchildren. These presentations cover a diverse range of personal experiences, integrating first-hand survivor testimony and are delivered to schools, universities, religious, multi-faith, community and civic institutions.

Through our work, we aim to ensure that the lessons of the Holocaust are learned: the need for tolerance, empathy and understanding of all groups in society; the fact that prejudice and discrimination can motivate genocide.

Our Presentations

What to expect

We provide thoroughly trained, well-rehearsed speakers who tell their family Holocaust stories to a range of audiences throughout the year.

Our presentations have a strong educational emphasis integrating oral or visual testimony, personal and historical photographs and film, letters and other artefacts.

Our presenters are able to deliver on-line or face-to-face and can adapt their presentation to the needs of your Holocaust education activity and audience.
